

Kadyn Livingston

Data centers are harmful and useless blights on our land, energy grid, environment, and economy. They produce very little jobs long term, use up extremely large amounts of water (a precious resource, especially in New Mexico) and scar our land with ZERO benefits. Allowing such rampant and unnecessary pillaging of our resources and beautiful state in pursuit of nothing but economic gain for the the wealthy elite is nothing but a betrayal of the state and her people. The only outcome of this blemish on our landscape will be harm done to our communities, a worsening of our quality of life, and a drain on our VERY limited resources. Lining your own pockets is absolutely no excuse for allowing such harm to be perpetrated against our beautiful land. Do what's best for our people, our communities, our children and future generations.