

jon klingel

NMED's proposed modifications seem pretty good. I believe this is the same facility that was originally advertised to the public as temporary storage for low level contaminated items such as gloves. Even contaminated gloves don't blow up the way WIPP did a couple years ago.