I support NMED's modification of the WIPP permit, NMED Agency Initiated Modification or AIM.

Spend the money to identify and remove waste from area G. Its that simple

The technology exists to identify the contents of the barrels doesn't it?

It has been reported years ago that the barrels are in danger of leaking if they are moved. So ... I am assuming that is why they are still in Area G. But the hazardous waste managers have ways of dealing with that. Don't they? Figure it out or find someone who can! LANL do your job! Spend the money!
