First off I am a resident of Santa Fe, New Mexico.

I completely support NMED's sanction if DOE fails to move this waste by a set date. Not allowing DOE to ship waste other than LANL legacy waste until it catches up is appropriate and needed.

A wildfire can occur at any time between now and then; getting the legacy waste in WIPP now is essential!

Storing nuclear waste as it has been so far is 1) ...unacceptable at LANL and 2) ...should NOT be allowed due to fire risk in this very dry area of New Mexico. It endangers residents in this area and will for ever and ever as the 1/2 life of nuclear waste is 100,000 years!

There are other locations that would be far more acceptable, but this dangerous nuclear waste, which is stored so irresponsibly, cannot continue in Los Alamos!
