

Allison Cobb

I support the AIM that places priority on sending legacy waste from Los Alamos to WIPP. As a person born and raised in Los Alamos, I worry about the multi-generation health and environmental effects of waste at Los Alamos that has never been cleaned up and was never meant to be stored long term. Being accountable for its Cold War legacy should be a DOE priority over expanding its nuclear program. Pit production is NNSA's most expensive program ever, with $5 billion to be spent over each of the next six years and at least $60 billion over the next 20 years. Taxpayer money should be spent on protecting taxpayers from the toxic legacy of the Cold War, not expanding this legacy. I am grateful to NMED for their leadership.