

Odie Waters

I applaud the TCEQ's effort to amend the Air Quality Standard Permit for Concrete Batch Plants. The health of Texas residents, and the inherent dangers from concrete batch plants in close proximity to neighborhoods and schools should take precedence over the industry need to make money. Undoubtedly, concrete (sadly) is needed in today's world, but the production of it should not endanger the citizens of Texas. As stewards of our air, water and the environment, I implore that TCEQ takes the steps needed to ensure the concrete industry is in full compliance. Thank you in advance.
