

Ryan Evans

Inspectors will be losing their jobs if we cannot increase the charge for inspections. It's a painful process we are all going through because of the politics behind the safety inspection program removal. I trust the TCEQ will come to a logical conclusion on the outcome of the emissions inspection cost and realize that this fee is far too low at the current price of employing a certified inspector.