Inspection fees have stayed stagnant since I got into the Auto Repair business in 2012. During that time my technician wages have more than tripled, my rent has gone over 25% and so has the cost of my utilities and consumables. I often joke with our patrons that come for an inspection that it takes a special idiot like me to choose a line of work where there is no increase in earnings. In my humble opinion the emission inspection fees need to be raised to $30.00 which will adequately compensate inspection stations for the resources we have to provide to offer this service.
