There needs to be State standards that regulate Aggregate Production Operations. They move into areas and destroy the existing neighborhoods and surrounding areas. They do not care about their neighbors or communities, only about their profits. They rob neighbors of their lifeblood which is water from their wells by using large amount of water for their operations and end up drying up neighbors wells. These neighbors count on these wells for drinking water, household use and for live stock. I can not believe that the TCEQ does not even have monitoring stations in Burnet county yet they recently approved and Aggregate operation in the county.
