

Brad Beneski

TCEQ,

The proposed Best Management Practices (BMPs) for Aggregate Production Operations are critically flawed. They fail to address key environmental concerns mandated by the Texas Legislature, including water consumption, noise, and light pollution. Moreover, the existing BMPs for dust control and water storage require significant improvement.

The Texas Commission on Environmental Quality (TCEQ) must revise and expand the BMPs to comprehensively address the Legislature's directives.

Sincerely,

Brad
