

Emily Dukes

There needs to be environmental impact studies done from an independent source before moving forward. The fast tracking of any action is the first issue. The new discovery of the endangered jaguar officially in the area should be reason enough. A proper, unbiased, environmental impact assessment must be done before moving forward for the sake of the water, plant life, and every human and animal this will affect.