

Marylee Adamson

Copper World plans for operation are much too dangerous to air quality to be allowed to proceed. They are too close to residential areas, schools and to Tucson. The prevailing south wind would send any objectionable particles all the way to large population areas.