

Paul Huddy

This mine is located in a valley where over half a million people live. We already have serious air pollution problems as it is. The dominant winds blow north from the mine right toward Tucson, which has a high percentage of respiratory inflicted people of all ages.

With ever hotter record temperatures every year, dwindling rains, and wind storms as strong as tornado force, we don't need another big source of dust, dirt and pollution.

We urge you to apply the greatest measures at your disposal to limit pollution of all kinds from this ill-conceived mine.

Thank you.
