

Natasha Varner

Stop the cruelty and the murder of many other innocent and not targeted wild and domestic animals. These poisons harm so many animals, and the environment, and Californians already spoke out against these chemicals. Newsome signed several bills recently, we absolutely shouldn't rollback any of those laws, that's moving in the complete wrong direction. There are many other options that are so much safer for all animals and are far less cruel for the rodents - I especially support contraceptives because in a very short period you'll see the populations decrease, and it won't harm a random raccoon or squirrel that ingests it. Please don't rollback progress, think outside the box and show everyone that California is innovative and willing to try new approaches instead of the same old toxic solutions that harm so much.