

Abbie Bernstein

Rodenticide endangers all predators in the food chain. It also creates a greater possibility of insect-borne disease, as parasites that normally live on rodents will jump off the corpses onto other hosts, including humans.