

William Mancilla

Make government entities also have to report but make it less restrictive for them. Every organization should be held accountable for the environmental harm they pose to communities. If an organization does not want to change the way they handle their operations to make for cleaner air for their local environment, they should be penalized. We need to hold everyone accountable for their actions. State, and local government entities produce vast amounts of GHG emissions, not taking these into account would not only undermine Californias clean energy goals but also the well-being of all Californians across the state.