

Jennifer Coalson-Perez

I live in rural California. My child's school is 6 miles away. The grocery store and gas stations are 10 miles away. I take care of my elderly parents who live 61 miles away. I drive approximately 20,000 miles per year- and that is essential driving. Millions of rural Californians are in the same position I am in. Please give California drivers some relief and do not implement any further regulations on the oil and gas companies.
