

Linda Stock

I am 80 years old, and I remember the "bad, old days " as a child when my eyes would burn from the smog and my lungs hurt if I ran. I remember my skin burning and having all our family get-togethers in our home in Long Beach because it had a good "breeze" instead of where my relatives lived where "smog gets hung up by the mountains and just stays there like a blanket." If you look at Kern County where now the most refining is done, you will see the statistical problems with respiration in factual data that has been collected.

Let's use wind, solar, and nuclear (only if necessary) instead of imperilling ourselves, our children, and our grandchildren. I want strong mandated reporting of greenhouse emotion and support steps to reduce them, rather than increase them.