Trying to regulate green house gas (aka carbon dioxide as a pollutant) is pure folly to start. Reporting on something invisible and immeasurable except in lab conditions is a fools errand. California is drowning in ridiculous regulations like these and giving control to an unelected board who doesn't understand all the ramifications of their "do good" laws. We're about to lose another refinery with huge looming energy bills coming. Energy prices affect everything. Why is California so expensive? Because of retarded laws like the one being proposed. Wake up ! You're ruining our state!
