

Eleanor Bolick

This is unnecessary and costly. We are already doing the most to manage "climate" in California. The CARB has continually diminished the quality of life for Californians by making everything more expensive--gas costs go up, everything else follows. California is already unaffordable for most working people. Young adults are not starting families because they already cannot afford regular living expenses for themselves. This is unsustainable. Please do not allow more regulations from CARB. Californians cannot afford it!