

Sara Theiss

I live in Richmond, as does my husband who has COPD, my grandson who has asthma, and my son-in-law has diabetes. And of course, Richmond is home to the Chevron refinery. The proposed rules do very little or nothing to help my family members they appear to be mainly a giveaway to industry. As you may have noticed, the oil and gas industry doesn't need giveaways because it's making a ton of money now. It's time for carb to take seriously that part of its mission which is to protect public health. Therefore, I specifically ask that Carbs

- (1) Make the "cap" lower to lower emissions and meet California's climate goals;
- (2) reduce giveaways to the oil and gas industry, especially by eliminating the new "manufacturing decarbonization incentive"; and
- (3) increase electricity bill credit

Please, make the right choice and protect people not profits.

Sincerely,
Sara Theiss,
