

Dan Gudgel

Have you regulators lost your total sense of reality? At a time when refineries are leaving; gas prices are skyrocketing due to a looming lack of fuel (can you say; inflation instigators); and then talk of lack of affordability in California, this additional cost can NOT be tolerated. Fuel taxes need to lower back closer to nationwide pricing as it is. Again, this additional cost will decrease the attractiveness of business to California. We are becoming a residential slum with minimal business infrastructure. Please do NOT implement additional cost no matter what the "long-term" benefit is perceived to be.