

Lisa Collinsworth

I have been following this issue for some time. California has a reputation for excessive regulations that make life expensive for all citizens. These regulations on refineries and other businesses are killing our state. The president of Chevron just sent a warning that these proposed updates will strangle the last remaining refineries in this state. I do not want an electric vehicle and the infrastructure does not exist to support it. We should have the freedom to drive a vehicle that suits our needs. Please stop these excess regulations and pay attention to the needs of this state's constituents! Thank you for your attention to this matter.