

Steven McCracken

Please do not overly restrict first responders, fire departments and police who cannot have their vital services interrupted or rendered unavailable because of limitations on EV vehicles and the systems that supply them with electricity. Remove the 25% cap entirely. Let these entities have time to move toward alternative fuel vehicles gradually. One easy option now: require the use of California's renewable diesel fuel in all diesel powered fleet vehicles if that fuel is available. That would result result in an immediate and easy reduction in emissions with no interruption to service.