Please accept this comment about water quality; I have been collecting notes on it for twenty years. The smell of chlorine is strongest after long weekends away, and it lingers on my hands after washing dishes. Even after boiling, the water keeps a chemical smell that does not go away. The water in our toilet tank has a visible layer of grit that I have to scrub out regularly. My white sinks and tubs develop stubborn stains that no ordinary cleaner removes. I worry about microplastics and pharmaceutical traces that standard treatment may not remove. Public health should be the first consideration when decisions are made about treatment and funding. We have had to buy bottled water for formula preparation because we do not trust the tap. I do not want to be an alarmist, but the uncertainty about long-term exposure makes it hard to feel at ease. Backflow prevention seems neglected in older buildings, and I would like to see an inspection program. At the last community meeting, many people raised their hands when asked if they use a filter at home. I would be glad to help organize a neighborhood meeting with the utility to discuss water quality concerns. Please prioritize the oldest neighborhoods first, since they have lived with these problems the longest.
