Thank you for the chance to comment; water quality is a top priority for my household in the older part of the city. Coffee and tea made with this water taste flat and slightly bitter compared with what I make when I travel. I can taste the difference between morning and evening water, and the evening water is usually harsher. Arsenic and other naturally occurring minerals concern me because I depend on water from our private well. Several neighbors have reported stomach upset that they suspect is linked to the water, though nobody can prove it. I have sensitive skin, and my dermatologist suggested that the chlorine and hardness may be contributing. I do not want to be an alarmist, but the uncertainty about long-term exposure makes it hard to feel at ease. Real-time monitoring data for turbidity and chlorine should be available on a public dashboard. Water bills keep climbing, yet the quality has not improved, which feels unfair to families on fixed incomes. A whole-house filtration system quoted at several thousand dollars is out of reach for most people around me. I would be glad to help organize a neighborhood meeting with the utility to discuss water quality concerns. Our community deserves transparency, investment, and accountability when it comes to what flows from our taps.
