I am a parent and a taxpayer, and the quality of our community water supply in our apartment complex is something I think about every day.

The smell of chlorine is strongest during the summer months, and it lingers on my hands after washing dishes.

I once filled a clear glass and found tiny particles floating in it, which really worried me.

White scale builds up on our kettle, showerheads, and glassware much faster than it should.

I am concerned about lead from old service lines, because many homes in my street were built decades ago.

Backflow prevention seems neglected in older buildings, and I would like to see an inspection program.

Treatment plant upgrades have been delayed repeatedly, and residents are left to cope with the consequences.

Test results should be posted online in an easy-to-read format, not buried in a long annual report.

I requested a copy of our latest water quality report and found it full of jargon that no ordinary resident can interpret.

Gardeners nearby have noticed that tap water leaves white residue on leaves and seems to stunt some plants.

I would like to be notified of any follow-up meetings or public hearings on this topic.
