

Rebecca Malcom

Vancouver Lake is in great need of improvements. This body of water is important to the local ecology and its ecosystems, and unfortunately, has been polluted. In its current condition, it is a risk to public health, as well as a risk to the wildlife and nature that surround it. Vancouver Lake is an important part of the Columbia River system, and in dire need of improvement and conservation efforts.