

Yogesh Mathur

Vancouver Lake has chronically had pollution issues for the past several years. This is an amazing natural resource for SW Washington, however, it frequently is closed or under health advisement. The solution is relatively simple- open the channel at the South end of the lake to allow for free flow movement of water to flush the lake's toxins, milfoil, and algae.