

Steve Savitz

Inert ingredients are never 'inert'. All kinds of toxic dyes and synthetic chemicals are listed as 'inert ingredients' on common medications and over the counter drugs -- I can't imagine how toxic the inert ingredients must be for pesticides. Every foreign synthetic substance that gets absorbed into the human body has to be broken down and detoxified by an overworked liver and other detox pathways -- once the body is overloaded, disease processes start.