I have been attempting to feed my family organic vegetarian food for years now. The thought that this food was raised under regulations that allowed for “inert” non organic additives makes me very angry. Undermining a food system that is supposed to be clean and as nature intended is what the word organic means. No antibiotics in animal manures, no pesticides or fertilizer that isn’t already available in nature and considered a healthy to consume product. I ask that you do not allow the companies that wish to sell their products to change the purity of our food. How we can allow this is because of bad policy and needs to be fixed.
