

Kathryn Burns

I am commenting about the need to evaluate inert ingredients in pesticides for organic production. We know that pesticides are essentially mixtures of chemicals that interact with each other. Some 'inert' ingredients could have a significant impact on how these formulas work.