

Valerie Friedman

As required by law, it is extremely important that foods and other items labeled Organic must conform to certain standards. All ingredients in Organic items whether considered 'active' or 'inert' must conform to those standards, lest companies start slowly bending the rules in small increments.