

Ed Braxford

The specific impacts of the Brighton Beach water project on wildlife will depend on a variety of factors, including the location of the infrastructure and the habitats of the local flora and fauna. Construction and operation of the project could lead to habitat loss, changes in water quality, and disturbance of local wildlife populations.